

Foundation Subject Leadership

Curriculum focus: intent, implementation, impact - 2 day course

This course supports middle leaders to effectively lead their subject, with a particular focus on understanding the pivotal role the curriculum plays in shaping teaching and learning. Foundation subject leaders will build the skills, knowledge and understanding necessary to drive forward developments in their subject on this two-day practical leadership course.

Headteacher comments: "I am delighted with the way the programme has developed my leaders...it will have a lasting impact on everyone who has been part of the course." "I actually have had people asking me if they could be considered because they can see the difference in the teachers who have already completed it!"

Covered across the course are a number of themes:

- Understanding why the curriculum is important and being aware of national updates, including the most recent publications from Ofsted.
- Understanding the aims and objectives of the National Curriculum and the choices leaders need to make in shaping pupil learning.
- Creating and sharing a vision for the subject and having a clear rationale for how the subject is delivered in each key stage.
- Mapping the delivery of content - including logical sequencing of units and ensuring progression in skills and knowledge.
- Auditing the current position - identifying strengths and areas for development.
- Creating a short-term and long-term action plan.
- Turning the action plan into a reality - how do leaders drive forward improvements?
- Ensuring there is equality of access to the curriculum for different pupil groups.
- Working with other leaders to create an integrated pupil experience.
- Considering how the impact of the curriculum is assessed and how assessment information is used to support learning.
